MEGILLAT TAANIT: TEXT AND TRANSLATION.\textsuperscript{144}

\textsuperscript{144} In editing the text of the 'Megillah', I consulted Neubauer, \textit{Medieval Jewish Chronicles}, II, Oxford, 1895; G. Dalman, \textit{Aramäische Dialektproben}, Leipzig, 1896; Derenbourg, \textit{Essai sur l'histoire et la géographie de la Palestine, &c.}, Paris, 1867, p. 442; Graetz, \textit{Geschichte der Juden}, III, 2, p. 559; M. Schwab, \textit{Actes du onzième Congrès international des Orientalistes}, Paris, 1897, 4\textsuperscript{e} section, p. 199, and also some notes by Schwab, giving Dr. A. Marx's views, in the \textit{Revue des Études Juives}, 1900, pp. 266-8; \textit{Sedah la-Derek} by Menahem ibn Zeralh, 247b-248, and also both the Talmud-Babli (in the Munich MS., and also photographs of MSS. of the British Museum and the Bodleian Library) and Talmud Jerushalmi. The Megillah is mentioned in Halakot Gedolot, p. 615 (ed. Hildesheimer), in the Siddur of Rab Amram Gaon (ed. Hildesheimer, p. 193), in Mahzor Vitry, p. 229 (ed. Hurvitz), and also in Kol Bo in its regulations concerning fasts. The 'Megillah' was first printed with the Seder 'Olam Rabba and the Seder 'Olam Zuta and Seder ha-Kabbalah Mantua, 1513. It was again printed—this time in Basle, by Ambroise Troben—in 1580, also in Amsterdam in 1711, and in Hamburg in 1757, with notes by Jacob Israel Emden; Joh. Meyer, \textit{Tractatus de temporibus et festis diebus Hebraeorum}, etc. Accedit \textit{Mellālē ṭaņiīn}, Volumen de ieiunio, Amstelaedami, 1724. Besides

Heb. Gaster, No. 82, fragment 172a-173a, ימשה יתוד רבכ: ובטמון תשרי באל ים... ימקה, refers to one of the holidays mentioned in our Megillah. This is not, however, acceptable. The reference to this holiday is in Hebrew, whereas our Megillah is entirely in Aramaic.
(c) On the 23rd thereof the garrison departed from Jerusalem.

(d) On the 27th thereof was discontinued payment of the tribute (from Judah and Jerusalem).

III. (a) On the 14th of Sivan the tower of the Fort was captured (see No. XXI).

(b) On the 15th and 16th thereof the people of Bethshean and the valley were exiled.

(c) On the 25th thereof the publicans were removed from Judah and Jerusalem.

IV. On the 4th (10th) of Tammuz the book of decrees was removed (on which it is not allowed to mourn).

V. (a) On the 15th of Ab, the day of Xylophoria, it is forbidden to mourn.

(b) On the 24th thereof we returned to our Law.

VI. (a) On the 7th of Elul was the day of the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem, on which it is forbidden to mourn.

(b) On the 17th thereof the Romans evacuated Judah and Jerusalem.

(c) On the 22nd thereof we began to slay the wicked.

VII. On the 3rd of Tishri were removed the 'mentions' on documents.

VIII. (a) On the 23rd of Heshvan the Sorega was torn away from the 'Azarah.

(b) On the 25th thereof the wall of Samaria was captured.

(c) On the 27th thereof they began again to bring the offerings of fine flour upon the altar.

IX. (a) On the 3rd of Kislev the images were removed from the Court.

(b) On the 7th thereof (a holiday).
(c) On the 21st thereof was the day of Mt. Gerizim (on which it is not allowed to mourn).

(d) On the 25th thereof is the day of Hanukkah: eight days it is forbidden to mourn.

X. On the 28th of Tebet the Sanhedrin sat in judgement.

XI. (a) On the 7th of Shebat is a holiday, whereon it is not allowed to mourn.

(b) On the 22nd thereof the work on what the enemy commanded to bring into the Temple was stopped; not allowed to mourn.

(c) On the 28th thereof Antiochus (the king) departed from Jerusalem.

XII. (a) The 8th and 9th of Adar they supplicated and sounded blasts for rain.

(b) On the 12th thereof is the day of Tyrian; see No. XXIX.

(c) On the 13th thereof is the day of Nicanor.

(d) On the 14th and 15th thereof (are the days of) Purim, on which it is not allowed to mourn.

(e) On the 16th thereof was begun the building of the wall of Jerusalem; it is forbidden to mourn thereon.

(f) On the 17th thereof the Gentiles arose against the refugees of Sepphoris in the province of Chalcis and in Beth Zabdain, but there came salvation (to the Jews); see No. XXX.

(g) On the 20th thereof the people fasted for rain (and it descended).

(h) On the 28th thereof the glad tidings reached the Jews that they were not to be restrained from the study of the Law. It is not permitted to mourn thereon.

It is obvious that the text of the Megillah is arranged according to the sequence of the months and not in chronological order. To establish the historical relation between the events commemorated in the Megillah, and to interpret these, it is necessary to rearrange the various dates in a chronological setting. The following diagram is an outline of the events which underlie the celebrations described in the Megillah, and which fall into four main periods:

A. The pre-Hasmonean Period.
B. The Hasmonean Period.
C. Roman Period till 65.
D. The Great Revolt, 65–66.
E. Miscellaneous.
CHAPTER VIII

A. THE PRE-HASMONEAN PERIOD.

I. FROM the New Moon of Nisan (until the 8th thereof) the Tamid was established.

According to the Scholiast this holiday commemorates the triumph of the Pharisees over the Sadducees when it was decided that the daily offering (Tamid) should be provided at the expense of the community (paid for out of the public treasury), in opposition to the view of the Sadducees who maintained that it should be paid for by individuals. This is also the generally accepted view.\(^{201}\) It does not explain, however, why the fête should be protracted over seven days nor does it offer a reason for the particular selection of the week between the 1st and the 8th of Nisan to commemorate that Pharisaic victory. The Scholiast lightly passes over these difficulties by assuming שמחת הימים שלומם שלשה ימים מ, that the debates which ended in that victory continued for a week—the first in Nisan, but this explanation is without support or corroboration. Dalman\(^{202}\) thinks that this holiday commemorated the setting up of the Tabernacle by Moses in the Wilderness. This is not acceptable since the Tabernacle is not mentioned at all in the Megillah.

In my opinion, this holiday was instituted in memory of the dedication of the Second Temple when the Jews returned from Babylon. The dedication is described in Ezra 6.15:

'And this house was finished on the 3rd day of the month Adar, . . . And the children of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the children of the captivity, kept the dedication of this house of God with joy.' It is clear that the text must be emended, the correct reading being, not the 3rd, but the 23rd of Adar. The latter is found in the Septuagint and also agrees with 3 Ezra 7.5, and Antiq., XI, 4. 7.

In accordance with the prescribed requirements of Exod. 29, the following seven days were days of Consecration. This is also the tradition of the Talmud, which further corroborates the reading of the 23rd of Adar in the biblical text. The Talmud Menahot 45a reads:

R. Jose said unto him: They observed the sacrifices of consecration in the days of Ezra even as they were observed in the days of Moses.' The passage referred to by R. Judah is Ezek. 45.18:

What Rabbi Judah could not understand was the sacrificing of a sin-offering on the New Moon, when the burnt offering was really the New Moon offering (Num. 28.11). To this R. Jose rejoined that Ezekiel’s description of the sin-offering had no bearing on the character of the days as New Moon, but to the dedication of the Temple which was celebrated on that day, that is to say, just as in the days of Moses the seven days following the completion of the Tabernacle were days of consecration, after which the dedication proper was celebrated; so in the time of Ezra the seven days following the completion of the Temple on the 23rd of Adar were days of consecration, after which, on the 1st of Nisan, the Dedication of the Temple was duly observed by the sacrifice of the sin-offering (cp.

Lev. 9. 2). It was on this day also that the Tamid was sacrificed for the first time, or in the words of the Megillah אחתוק מדריה, the Tamid was established, or re-established, and the following week, that is, until the 8th of Nisan, was observed as a holiday.

In this connexion, the following passage in Seder Olam (ch. VII) is significant: "החלול (ה) עלון עד הכורא נainties" בנוושו שלמה. One is naturally confronted with the question whence did R. Jose, the author of the Seder Olam, derive the notion that the Tabernacle was set up 'on the 23rd day of Adar', when in Exodus it is stated explicitly בימיה ההולך הרשוש כהן גדול הלחשת תקופת את המשכן בשתיי מועד (cp.
Exod. 40, 2) and the actual setting up of the Mishkan is described in Exod. 40. 17, ויהו בהרש הרשעה בשתי השניות במדיוו תחומות התורה המשכון.204 The view of R. Jose becomes even more perplexing when it is taken into account that Rabbi Akiba, who was R. Jose's teacher, was of the opinion that the Tabernacle began with the 1st of Nisan, in other words, that the Tabernacle was completed then and not on the 23rd of Adar.205 If then R. Jose, his pupil, differed 201 Cp. Ibn Ezra on Exod. 40. 38; Lev. 9. 1.

203 סירד 68 ed. Friedmann: ויהי אמשא אשר וי מצאים/root למשך אתת
נני וי ר, עקמה אופר כי מתה לולעימה שנותנאה לולעימה ואביהו נמסינה לולעימה שהלא שוריתו שלמה לולעימה וברית מסות. This could only be if we consider the seven days of dedication as having commenced on the first of Nisan and continued to the eighth, and that on the eighth day Aaron and his sons began to offer their sacrifice while Nadab and Abihu were burned, and so from his teacher, it is strange indeed that he nowhere mentioned the view of his teacher with which he was in conflict.206

It is my opinion that the passage of Seder Olam here alluded to was corrupted, and that the writer incorrectly substituted Mishkan for the Second Temple, for in the Talmud the terms Mishkan and Mikdash are frequently interchanged.207 The second Temple was really finished on the 23rd of Adar and the seven days of Milluim connected therewith ended by the first of Nisan. In Seder Olam this was confused with the Mishkan. This corruption early misled the Tannaim and Amoraim, who relied on the Seder Olam, in the view that the days of Milluim in the time of Moses began with the 23rd day of Adar.208

II. From the 8th thereof until the close of the festival (of Passover) a holiday (of one week) was declared during which it is forbidden to mourn.

The explanation of this holiday according to the Scholiast is that it marked the triumph of the Pharisees over the Sadducees, in the famous controversy regarding the date of Pentecost. The Scholiast does not explain, however, why this period of seven days before Passover should have been chosen as a memorial of that Pharisaic victory. It appears to me that these seven days were really an extension of the 206 That the Sifra Leviticus 9 likewise experienced difficulty (Shemini, IX, 7) is shown from the passage 41rt: D3 1'il, where it says Inl ilt .YVT'nn lY Dir: n pD, for the apparent simple meaning of this D'Yiln 1:3 is the eighth day of Nisan, but in Seder Olam this is made to refer to the eighth day of Milluim.

preceding week which is celebrated as a holiday following the dedication of the Second Temple, the motive being that as the time was close to Passover, the people could be induced to remain in Jerusalem to celebrate Passover by declaring the intervening period a holiday.209

III. On the 7th (5th) day of Iyyar was the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem and it is forbidden to mourn thereon:

The dedication of the wall of Jerusalem is mentioned twice in the Megillah as the cause of a holiday, viz. in connexion with the 7th of Iyyar and in connexion with the 7th of Elul. According to the Scholiast the holiday in Iyyar goes back to the dedication of the wall in the time of Nehemiah (Neh. 12. 27). Graetz210 adopts the Scholiast's view, saying that even though the wall was finished by the 25th of Elul the dedication ceremonies were put off to the 7th of Iyyar when the city of Jerusalem was re-peopled.211

209 Ezra 6. 19–22; Sefer Mişwot Gadol, Mişwah 224; Dalman, ibid., p. 21. Dr. Louis Ginzberg suggested to me that this Yom Tob can be traced to the Hasmonian period: Before Judas Maccabeus's victory over Antiochus and Lysias the Jews were not able to keep the sabbaths and festivals. The first festival which they were in a position to keep after the victory and dedication in Kislev—Passover—found many of the Judeans unclean (through contact with a corpse), as battles continued to be fought. Being desirous to offer up the Paschal Lamb, they purified themselves in the seven days between the eighth and the fourteenth, and for this cause they made the whole seven days a Yom Tob—in remembrance of the seven days whereon they had purified themselves before the Passover in order to keep the festival—a thing that they had not been able to do while Antiochus ruled over the Jews. (See Maimonides, Korban Pesah and Notes of Rabad and Semag.)

CHAPTER IX

B. THE PERIOD OF THE HASMONEANS.

IV. On the 23rd (22nd) day of Ḥeshvan they tore away the Sorega from the 'Azarah.

By Sorega\(^{212}\) they meant the structure of stones, inter-spaced lattice-work, in the shape of an altar, which the Greeks built in the 'Azarah and on which they offered sacrifices. To this 1 Maccabees (4. 43–6) alludes when, after describing how Judas repulsed the Syrians (165 B.C.), it tells us that before they set about cleansing the Sanctuary in order to rededicate it, they first purified the 'Azarah and cast out the stones from the Sanctuary and also tore down the altar. The stones which they threw out from the Sanctuary were those which the Syrians had built up in the 'Azarah for sacrificial purposes. Although 1 Macc. does not specify the exact date, still what it does say in that connexion, shows that it was before the 25th of Kislev (the dedication) and is to that extent in agreement with this interpretation of the Megillah. To this the Scholiast doubtless refers when he says: מפכי שענו ליימ מדמום proudly ויהי מכם רימם בהוכח [עליז] התנהו ומשפטים וייחוסו חשמל חומת [הגיאוד] ומחכו ומחכו ומחכו ומחכו.\(^{213}\)

V. On the 27th of Ḥeshvan they began again to bring the offering of fine flour upon the altar.

According to the Scholiast this holiday commemorates the victory of the Pharisees over the Sadducees in a controversy concerning the disposition of flour that used to accompany the animal sacrifices, the latter contending that it should be burned with the sacrifice, the former holding the view that this meal-offering (נין) should be consumed by the priest. The explanations of the Scholiast, however, are not generally to be trusted, especially in his references to Pharisaic victories. He follows too freely a tendency to trace holidays to victories of the Pharisees when he has no other explanation at hand. If the Pharisaic victories were celebrated in the manner described by the Scholiast it would be strange indeed that no holiday was instituted in honour of the decision with regard to the Water Libation, or of other triumphs which were of far greater import than the point gained in the matter of the meal-offerings. In no case have we in the Megillah a reminiscence of those debates. None of the holidays there enumerated commemorate the triumph of one faction over the other. All point to incidents that were a source of comfort and gladness to the whole nation. There must, therefore, be some other significance to the holiday of the 27th of Heshvan. From 1 Macc. 4. 42–3 we learn that after Judas cleansed the Temple he chose for the Temple service such priests as were qualified to officiate. According to Lev. 6. 13, the priests who were thus anointed had to offer the meal-offering of fine flour. The High Priest, in particular, had to offer up the meal-offering daily. This, we may assume, was the cause of the holiday on the 27th of Heshvan.

216 E. g. the decision in regard to the question ‘דַּעַת׳; see S. Zeitlin, ‘The tent Takkanaot Ezra’, JQR., N. S., vol. VIII, pp. 64–6.

217 Josephite Menaḥot VII, 14.
Although 1 Macc. makes no mention of the meal-offering of fine flour, it is possible that this is alluded to in the letters which 2 Macc. cites as having been written to the Jews of Egypt καὶ προσηνέγκαμεν θυσίαν καὶ σεμίδαλιν, καὶ ἐξήψαμεν τοὺς λύχνους καὶ προεβήκαμεν τοὺς ἅρτους (2 Macc. 1. 8).\(^{218}\)

VI. On the 25th day thereof (Kislev) is the day of Hanukkah: eight days and it is forbidden to mourn.

This is but a terse way of putting the information given in 1 and 2 Maccabees, that after the purification of the Sanctuary they celebrated the dedication of the Temple eight days\(^{219}\) in the 149th year (Kislev 25, 165 B.C.E.), and made it an annual festival.\(^{220}\)

VII. On the 28th day thereof (Adar) the good news reached the Jews that they were not to be restrained from the study of the Law. It is not permitted to mourn thereon.

The Scholiast interprets this passage as commemorating the end of the Hadrianic oppression through the successful efforts of Judah ben Shammua' and his colleagues to have the former harsh decrees annulled. Graetz\(^{221}\) in this instance accepts the view of the Scholiast, and dates the event accordingly, 139/40 C.E. This, however, seems impossible; because such a holiday could not have been instituted so late if it was recorded in the Megillah. Thus in Rosh ha-Shanah 19 b, R. Meir and R. Jose dispute as to whether the festive days mentioned in the Megillah

still enjoyed the same status after the destruction of the Temple. Furthermore, two generations earlier, in the days of R. Joshua and R. Eliezer, the provisions of the Megillah were no longer in force, as for instance in Lydda, where a fast was decreed on Hanukkah, מׇשׂה וׇוהוׇ תׇעַנֵיׇתׇהׇ בּוׇהׇכְׁהׇ בּלָּוֹר, and it is therefore inconceivable that a new holiday should be added in the times of Judah ben Shammua, a disciple of R. Meir, to a calendar which appears to have already lost its sanctity. Derenbourg’s\(^{222}\) theory appears more plausible, that this holiday belongs to the Maccabean period when Antiochus V granted the Jews religious liberty. The epistle, which Antiochus addressed to the Jewish senate on this subject, was dated the 15th of Xanthicus of the 148th year. \(\chiρ\acute{\eta}ς\theta\acute{\iota}ς το\upsilon\varsigma \'Iου\delta\acute{\iota}ι\upsilon\varsigma το\upsilon\ έαυτ\omicron\omegaν \deltaα\acute{\iota}πανήμα\omicron\omicron\upsilon\varsigma \kappa\alpha\iota\upsilon\nu\omicron\omicron\upsilon\varsigma \kappa\alpha\theta\acute{\alpha} \kappa\alpha\iota\upsilon \tau\omicron\pi\rho\omicron\gamma\omicron\epsilon\omicron\omicron\upsilon\nu\) (2 Macc. 11. 31). Derenbourg fails to explain the identification of Xanthicus with Adar. For, usually, Xanthicus corresponds to the Jewish month Nisan. If, however, we adopt the view of Usher, that at that time the Syro-Macedonians used the solar reckoning,\(^{223}\) it becomes possible that what is here called Xanthicus, the 15th, corresponded with the next to the last (i.e. 28th) day of Adar, the month before Nisan, the date on which in the words of the Megillah the glad tidings reached the Jews that they were not to be restrained from the study and observance of the ‘Law’. This took place in the year 164 B.C.E.\(^{224}\)

This fête day commemorated an incident recorded of Antiochus Eupator who had besieged the Temple-mount.\textsuperscript{225} Judas and his army were no longer able to offer resistance. It was a sabbatic year, and their food supplies were exhausted. They would have been compelled to surrender to Antiochus. But Antiochus suddenly heard that Philippus was marching on Antioch to capture it. Then at the advice of Lysias he made peace with the Jews.\textsuperscript{226} This is what the Megillah alludes to when it says, ‘On the 28th of Shebat, Antiochus withdrew from Jerusalem.’

Such is also the opinion of Herzfeld.\textsuperscript{227} Graetz\textsuperscript{228} refers it to the death of Antiochus Epiphanes, and interprets the Scholiast’s шם שמחה רעה הentario which to mean that Antiochus Epiphanes travelled into Persia and died there. I consider Herzfeld’s view correct: that the day commemorates the peace made by Antiochus V with the Jews. For the text of the Megillah reads: אנתנהו STREET ומכירשה, and this fits in well with the fact of Antiochus’s leaving Jerusalem after concluding a treaty. The Scholiast’s observation as to the evil tidings is to be referred to the reports which reached Antiochus V concerning Philip’s advance which threatened to result in the capture of Antioch. This fact impelled him to leave Jerusalem to hasten to the defence of his capital, where he was killed not long after by Demetrius I.\textsuperscript{229} The holiday dates, therefore, from Shebat 28th, 163 B.C.E., which was a sabbatical year.\textsuperscript{230}

IX. On the 14th thereof (Iyyar) is the Minor Passover.

The commentators all agree that this is identical with the Pesah Sheni mentioned in Num. 9. 2, which was instituted for the benefit of those who were unclean or, being 'on a distant way', could not reach the holy city by the 14th of Nisan. They were directed to celebrate the Passover on the 14th day of the second month. It seems to me that in this connexion Pesah Kaṭan has an entirely different significance. It was a holiday for the nation, not merely for those individuals who were debarred through the above-mentioned exceptional circumstances. The celebration of the 14th of Iyyar is to be connected with the disturbances caused by the wars. Owing to the battles which they fought against the Syrians, the Hasmonaeans, who were the chief priests, were away from the Sanctuary during the Passover season (most battles were fought in the spring), and therefore the Paschal lamb could not be offered up in its season, and the Paschal sacrifices had therefore to be postponed to the 14th of Iyyar. On this account the 14th of the year became a holiday in commemoration of the victories over the Syrians.

X. On the 13th of Adar is the day of Nicanor.

The victory of Judas over Nicanor is mentioned in 1 Maccabees as the occasion for making the 13th of Adar a holiday: kal ἑστησαν τοῦ ἄγειν κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν τὴν ἡμέραν ταύτην τὴν τρισκαιδεκάτην τοῦ Ἀδάρ (1 Macc. 7. 49; 2 Macc. 15. 36). According to the account of 1 Maccabees that victory was in the year 152 A.S., corresponding in the 162/1 B.C.E.; being in Adar, it must therefore have been in 161 B.C.E.232

XI. On the 14th\textsuperscript{232a} day of Tammuz the book of decrees was removed.

The origin of this also the Scholiast seeks in the controversies between the Pharisees and the Sadducees. I have shown above (No. V) that none of the holidays mentioned in the Megillah are to be traced to this cause. Cassel’s view is acceptable, that the event hereby commemorated goes back to the time of Jonathan, and that the holiday was instituted because of the concessions which Alexander Balas and Demetrius granted to the Jews whereby all the decrees of the Greeks were annulled (I Macc. 10).\textsuperscript{233}

XII. On the 7th (4th) of Elul was the day of the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem.

This gala-day very likely goes back to the time of Jonathan. See I Macc. 10. 45, where we are told that Demetrius gave his sanction to Jonathan for the rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem, and even gave him money from his own treasury for this purpose. Another possibility is that it refers to a similar event in the administration of Simon, when he actually built the wall of Jerusalem, to which we find this reference in i Macc. 13. 10: καὶ ἐτάξυνε τὸν τελέσαι τὰ τείχη Ἰερουσαλήμ, καὶ ὀχύρωσεν αὐτὴν κυκλόθεν.\textsuperscript{234}

XIII. On the 27th of the month Iyyar the tribute from Judah and Jerusalem was discontinued.

The word \textit{στέφανος} is the equivalent of ‘crown-money’, which according to i Maccabees was relinquished by Demetrius II in 170 A. S. (143 B. C. E.) to the Jews who had paid this tribute to the Syrians. By this act the Jews were raised to the status of an independent nation, and the yoke of the Gentiles was removed.235

XIV. On the 23rd thereof (Iyyar) the garrison departed from Jerusalem.

The year and the day in which the Greeks evacuated the fort are explicitly given in 1 Macc. (13. 51) in its account of Simon's activities. The 23rd day of the second month in the 171st year (142 B. C. E.).236

XV. On the 21st day thereof (Kislev) was the day of Mt. Gerizim.

Josephus speaks twice at least of the destruction of the Sanctuary on Mt. Gerizim—in Bell. Iud. I, 2. 6, and in Antiq. XIII, 9. 1. In Talmud Babli (Yoma 69a), and also in the Scholia to this Megillah the dismantling of the Temple on Mount Gerizim is attributed to Alexander of Macedon, but it is well known that the Temple on Gerizim

235 From this year, 170 A. S. (144–3 B. C. E.) they began to count the administration of Simon, but not the rule of the Hasmoncean dynasty; this they began two years later, i. e. in the year 172, when in a public assembly it was resolved to confer upon Simon and his descendants the principality of Israel. This took place on the 18th of Elul in the year 172 (140 B. C. E.). Καὶ δὴ εἶδοκριναὶ ὦ ᾽Ιουδαίοι καὶ ὦ ἴδρεῖς τοῦ εἶναι αὐτῶν ᾿Ιερὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἢγομένων καὶ ἄρχειρά εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, ἐως τοῦ ἀναστήματος προφήτην πιστῶν (1 Macc. 14. 41). This statement of 1 Maccabees that the Jews accepted Simon as a prince for ever until a prophet should come, means that they gave the office to Simon and his descendants. (Comp. Ezra 2. 63; Neh. 7. 65.) And from this year 140 B. C. E., they began to count the dominion of the Hasmoncean dynasty. To this allusion is made by the editor of Seder Olam (XXX), when he says, ממלכת השפוריים משה ושולם שלם, the kingdom of the house of the Hasmonaeans lasted 103 years; from that public meeting in 140 B. C. E. until the execution of Antigonus, the last ruler of the Hasmonae dynasty in the beginning of the year 37 B.C. (see above, p. 77), was a period of 103 chronological years. See Marzbacher, Zeitschrift für Numismatik, 1878, pp. 292–319. See also Graetz, III, 2, p. 565.

remained intact until Hyrcanus destroyed it in the year 128 B.C.E. 237

XVI. On the 15th and 16th day of Sivan the inhabitants of Beth-shean (Scythopolis) and of the valley (of Jezreel) were deported.

These two consecutive days commemorate the reign of John Hyrcanus, his children captured Scythopolis and devastated the valley of Jezreel as far west as the mountains of Carmel after a victory over Antiochus IX, Bell. Iud. I, 2. 7; Antig. XIII, 10. 2–3.

Josephus in Antiquities, ibid. (282–3), tells of a miracle in connexion with this victory. While the sons of John Hyrcanus were carrying on the war with Antiochus IX, their father was officiating in the Temple; as he offered up incense, he heard a voice proceeding from the Holy of Holies, 'Thy sons have conquered Antiochus.' Leaving the Sanctuary he told it to the people; they took note of the time, and it proved to be true. 238 This is similar to what the rabbinical sources tell us: οὐκ οἶδα ἐκείνην τὴν ἡμέραν, καὶ ἦν ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ τῷ Κυζίκην τὸν οἰκίσαν, αὐτὸς ἐν τῷ ναῷ θυμίζων μόνος ὁ ἄρχων ἐκούσαε φωνῆς, ὅπως ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ γεννήσασαν ἄρτις τὸν Ἀντίωνον. καὶ τούτῳ προεῖδον καὶ τοῦ ναοῦ παντὶ τῷ πλήθει φαινόντα ἐκοίμησεν, καὶ οὐκ ἕτοις γενέσθαι. 239

237 Graetz, III, p. 566. According to Josephus the destruction of the Temple on Mount Gerizim took place two hundred years after it was built. Now Josephus states, Ant., XIII, 9. 1 and XI, 8. 4, 6, that the Temple was built by Sanballat for the sake of his son-in-law Manasseh. And that was in the time when Alexander the Great was in Syria, i.e. 333–332 B.C.E., which is to 128 B.C.E. more than two hundred years.

238 Φασών γὰρ, ἵνα κατ᾽ ἐκείνην τὴν ἡμέραν, καὶ ἦν ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ τῷ Κυζίκην συνέβαλον, αὐτὸς ἐν τῷ ναῷ θυμίζων μόνος ὁ ἄρχων ἐκούσαε φωνῆς, ὅπως ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ γεννήσασαν ἄρτις τὸν Ἀντίωνον. καὶ τούτῳ προεῖδον καὶ τοῦ ναοῦ παντὶ τῷ πλήθει φαινόντα ἐκοίμησεν, καὶ οὐκ ἕτοις γενέσθαι.

239 Here, no doubt, we should read בְּעָנָנָמוֹת instead of בְּעָנָנָמוֹת, Derenbourg, p. 74.
There is hardly room for doubt that the days whereon the sons of John Hyrcanus won their victory over Antiochus and captured Scythopolis were, respectively, the 15th and 16th of Sivan, just as our Megillah states.

XVII. On the 25th thereof (Ḥeshvan) Samaria was captured.

After a year's siege, about 168 B.C.E., John Hyrcanus captured Samaria. According to Josephus (Bell. Iud. I, 2. 7, and Antig. XIII, 10. 3) he destroyed it at the time and turned Samaria into a pond.\footnote{Midrash-rabba on Canticles 8. 10; also Babli Sotah 33 a; Jer., \textit{ibid.}, IX, 24 b; Tosefta, \textit{ibid.}, 13.}

CHAPTER X

THE ROMAN PERIOD.

XVIII. On the 3rd of Kislev the images were removed from the Temple-court.

 pimpain is borrowed from the Greek σημαίαι, meaning images. We see in this statement a reference to Tiberius's order to Pilate to set up his statues in the squares of Jerusalem. Πενφθείς δὲ εἰς Ἰουδαίαν ἐπίτροπος ὑπὸ Τιβερίου Πίλατος νῦκτορ κεκαλυμμένας εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα εἰσκομίζει τὰς Καίσαρος εἰκόνας αἱ σημαίαι καλοῦνται (Bell. Iud. II, 9. 2).

The events which led up to this demonstration are described by Josephus both in Bell. Iud., ibid., and Antig. XVIII, 3. 1. When the Jews heard of the order of Tiberius they petitioned Pilate not to set up the images of Caesar, for according to the Jewish religion it is forbidden to set up any image. Pilate would not listen to them and a few days later he summoned the people, to ask them whether they would consent to the setting up of Caesar's statues in Jerusalem and the people decried the act. Then Pilate commanded the legionaries to fall upon the people with their swords, but when the Jews proclaimed once more that they preferred death by the sword to violating a command of their religion, Pilate weakened in his resolution and ordered the removal of the images from Jerusalem. ύπερθανμάσας δὲ ὁ Πιλάτος τὸ τῆς δεισιδαιμονίας ἀκρατον ἐκκομίζει μὲν αὐτίκα τὰς σημαίας Ἱεροσολύμων κελεύει. (Bell. Iud., ibid. 3; Ant., ibid.) On that day the people made a joyful demonstration, for, as the Megillah says, ‘On the 3rd of Kislev the images were removed’.242

XIX. On the 22nd of Shebat the work ceased which the enemy commanded to bring into the Temple.

This refers to the report of Caligula’s death which meant, among other things, annulment of the edict to put his statue in the Temple (Bell. Jud. II, 10. 5). The expression ממלך מלך בנה is applied to the attempted installation of that image which the Zidonian artists had with great pomp already brought to Sidon (see Philo, Legatio ad Caio, ed. Cahn et Reiter).

We know that Petronius, desiring to give Caligula opportunity to change his mind, put obstacles in the way of those who wished to set up the statue, and that the work was entirely abandoned when he received a letter announcing that Caligula was killed (the assassination took place on January 24, 41 C.E.).

The Scholiast, though differing slightly in details, substantially agrees with Josephus.243 He tells us it was the day whereon the images sent by לְכָּלְכָּה (evidently corruption of ‘Caius Caligula’) would have been set up in the Temple. Report (of the Emperor’s purpose) came to Jerusalem on the eve of Succoth. Simon the Just, however, said to them, ‘Celebrate your feasts joyfully, for none of these things which you have heard shall come to pass. He who caused his divine presence to dwell in this house, just as he brought to pass miracles for our ancestors in every generation, so will he do for us likewise.’ He heard a voice from the Holy of Holies which said that the work was stopped which the enemy commanded to bring into the Temple; Gaskolas is killed and his decree is nullified. And when he saw that the Romans continued to come to the city he said to the Jews, ‘Go out to meet them.’ But when the Jews learned of the matter (of the images), they said, ‘We will die, all of us, rather than allow Caesar’s images to be set up.’ They cried and supplicated the legate (Petronius). Said he (the legate) to them, ‘Wherefore cry and pray ye (to the legate) (to me), pray ye unto your God to save you.’ When the legate reached the city he saw the people covered in the streets in sackcloth and ashes. He had hardly reached Antipatris when a letter reached him announcing the death of Gaskolas (Caius Caligula) and his decrees were annulled. That day they made a holiday.244

XX. On the 16th of Adar they began to build the wall of Jerusalem.

The holidays of Iyyar 7th and Elul 7th commemorate dedicatory exercises in connexion with the walls of Jerusalem, while on this, the 16th of Adar, we are told 244 Graetz, III, 2, 573 and note 21; Derenbourg, p. 207, n. 1; Schwab, 244-6; Schürer, pp. 495–506.

they began to build the wall of Jerusalem'. Graetz sees therein a reference to the beginning which was made on the wall of Jerusalem and on the fortification of the suburb Parva by Agrippa I in 42–3 B.C.E. He did not complete these operations as the Emperor Claudius bade him to desist from the work. Hence the expression, 'They commenced to build the wall'.

CHAPTER XI

THE GREAT WAR AGAINST THE ROMANS.

XXI. On the 14th of Sivan the tower of the fort was captured.

The Scholiast thus explains כין ההולות והוה הוהל לוֹשָׁרָאָל יִירָה בֵּיתוֹ וַתִּכְבֹּר יִדָּה לְהַשָּׁמְוָא מִסָּמָה הָיוֹשֵׁבָא יִשְׁרָאֵל בֹּאֵל הַשָּׁמְוָא יִשְׁרָאֵל וַתִּכְבֹּר יִדָּה לְהַשָּׁמְוָא מִסָּמָה הָיוֹשֵׁבָא יִשְׁרָאֵל. ‘This is Caesarea, daughter of Edom, dwelling among the castles. It was a thorn in the side of Israel in the days of the Greeks, and when the Hasmoneans grew powerful they conquered it and deported its population and settled Jews in its midst. The day on which Caesarea was conquered they made a holiday.’

Graetz argues against the Scholiast’s explanation showing that until the time of Herod, Caesarea continued to be inhabited entirely by Syrians and Greeks. It was Herod who settled Jews in that city. Graetz therefore suggests that this holiday indicated the period of Simon the Hasmonean. In this case, however, the text ought to read מַעְלָל זָרָה אֲבָרָהָם בַּת צוֹר and not מַעְלָל זָרָה אֲבָרָהָם בַּת צוֹר.

It appears to me that this holiday is connected with the Revolt, marking in fact, its outbreak, the first Jewish victory (over Florus). As Josephus (Bell. Iud. II, 15. 6) tells us, the priests and the people captured the towers of the fortress Antonia which joined that fortress with the Sanctuary; through their thus establishing themselves firmly there and thence controlling the whole city, Florus was compelled to give up Jerusalem. The Antonia was originally called the citadel or tower. Josephus often calls it Baris (βαρίς), phonetically allied to its Hebrew designation נֵבָרֶה, and only later when the tower was rebuilt by Herod, he named it Antonia in honour of his patron Antony. This citadel was situated on the north side of the Temple, and was originally built by the Hasmoneans. The date of the Megillah, the 14th of Sivan, harmonizes with the date which Josephus assigns to the capture of Antonia, and thus significantly corroborates our interpretation. Josephus says that on the 16th and 17th of Artemisius there were riots in Jerusalem, and that the people swarmed about the army of Florus. Not long after, the priests and the people succeeded in driving out the Romans, and taking possession of the environs of the Temple. They tore down the columns connecting the Temple and the Antonia. All this took place in the twelfth year of Emperor Nero, and, as we have proved, this was 65 C.E. In 65 C.E.

the 17th of Artemisius (4th of June) fell on the 10th of Sivan,\(^{253}\) and according to Josephus the dismantling of Antonia took place several days after the happenings of the 17th of Artemisius, which is quite in agreement with the 14th of Sivan in the Megillah.

XXII. On the 25th (21st) of Sivan the publicans were removed from Judah and Jerusalem.

The Scholiast explains this paragraph with an Alexandrian legend. When the Ishmaelites, the Canaanites, and the Egyptians made common cause against the Jews, and complained to the Macedonian conqueror that the birthright belonged to Ishmael, that the land belonged to Canaanites, &c., Gebiha ben Pesisa, with the counsel of the Sages, controverted them and, adducing proofs from the Torah that the birthright and the land belonged to Israel, won his case, and that day was immediately declared a Yom Tob.\(^{254}\) Graetz\(^{255}\) has rightly pointed out that the were the Roman publicans or tax-farmers.
The holiday is to be explained from the fact that after the defeat of Florus and his retreat from the city the people ceased to pay tribute to Caesar. This fact is mentioned by Josephus; namely, that when Agrippa spoke to the people in favour of peace he reproved them for having ceased to pay tribute to Caesar: ἀλλὰ τὰ ἔργα, ἐφη, Ῥωμαίοις ἦδη πολεμοῦντων ἐστίν· οὐτε γὰρ Καίσαρι δεδοκατε τὸν φόρον καὶ τὰς στοὰς ἀπεκόψατε τὴς Ἀντωνίας (Bell. Iud. II, 16. 5). Comparing the two items in the Megillah, we see that it was only shortly after the defeat of Florus on the 14th of Sivan that the people ceased to pay tribute to Caesar, on the 25th day thereof.

XXIII. On the 17th of Elul the Romans evacuated Jerusalem.

Graetz rightly connects this celebration with the Great Revolt. But he errs in identifying this holiday with the request of the Roman army to the Jews to allow them peacefully to evacuate the forts (Bell. Iud. II, 17. 10). According to Josephus none of the Romans (excepting Metillius, who saved his life by becoming a Jew) left Jerusalem, for when they left the forts the Jews killed them. Our Megillah, however, says distinctly ἅμα οὖν ἐπετέλεσαν ἀπολογηθήσαν ἀπαντεῖς πλὴν Μετιλίου, τῶν γὰρ ἰκ νεύεντα καὶ μέχρι περιτομῆς ιοντασένειν ἐπισχέμενον διέσωσαν μόνον.

Graetz fell into error through assuming that Loius and Gorpiaeus were Jewish months clothed in Syro-Macedonian names, the former being Ab and the latter Elul. This view seemed to find support in Josephus's (Bell. Iud. II, 17. 6–7) relation of the Jews' triumph over Agrippa's army after the wood-festival of the 14th Loius: τῆς τῶν ἔλιοφορίων 258 See below, XXV, p. 269.

This wood-festival is assumed to have been identical with that of the 15th of Ab, which is mentioned in the Mishnah (Taanit 26a) and in the Megillah. Graetz even suggests that in our copies of Josephus, 15th of Loüs should be read for the 14th.\(^{259}\) There is no valid proof for this identification, and there is even less justification for this forced emendation. In fact there were nine times appointed in the year which were known as wood-festivals. Thus Taanit 26a, λόγος τοῦ ξύλος και τῶν ἔσχατων ἔτη. As I have demonstrated above, the months in Bell. Iud. were not Jewish months, but the months of Tyre, which were used in Syria (see above). The month of Loüs therefore (in Bell. Iud.) might be either Ab or Elul, and the wood-festival mentioned in Bell. Iud. consequently need not at all be that of the 15th of Ab. We may, however, infer that in the year 65 B.C.E. the 14th of Loüs fell on September 2,\(^{260}\) and this coincides significantly with the 10th of Elul, which is one of the wood-festivals mentioned in the Mishnah.\(^{261}\) The event of the 17th of Elul, which is mentioned in the Megillah, therefore took place about a week after the 14th of Loüs, which was none other than the defeat which the Jews inflicted on the army of Agrippa and the army of the Romans, according to Josephus, a few days after the 15th of Loüs. On this occasion Agrippa's army was forced to capitulate in order to secure safe egress from the city, which the Jews allowed, and they departed (Bell. Iud., ibid. 8): οἱ δὲ ἐνδοθεν πρὸς τὲ τὸν Μανάημον καὶ τοὺς

This, then, is what the Megillah refers to when it says, 'On the 17th of Elul the Romans evacuated Jerusalem' (Agrippa’s troops).

XXIV. On the 22nd day thereof they began again to slay the wicked.

Graetz and Derenbourg understand the Scholiast to refer the origin of this holiday to the Hasmonean era. It is doubtful, however, whether this was the meaning of the Scholiast. These are his words:

Graetz and Derenbourg understand the Scholiast to refer the origin of this holiday to the Hasmonean era. It is doubtful, however, whether this was the meaning of the Scholiast. These are his words:

In any event this interpretation of the Scholiast is not acceptable. The incident here depicted happened less than a week after Agrippa’s departure from Jerusalem. The refusal of the ‘wicked’ describes the attitude of the Roman soldiers who would not surrender and give up their weapons to the Jews. The Jews waited until the 22nd of Elul, but the Romans were still defiant and the Jews again attacked the stronghold and killed the Romans, άθυμία δὲ τοὺς Ῥωμαίους καταλειφθέντας μόνους ὑπέλαβεν: οὔτε γὰρ βιάσασθαι τοσοῦτον πλῆθος ἐδύναντο καὶ τὸ δεξιὰν αἰτεῖν ὅνειδος ὑπελάμβανον, πρὸς τὸ [τὸ] μὴ διστάναι εἰς τὸ διδοῖτο. καταλιπόντες δὴ τὸ στρατόπεδον ὅς εὐάλωτον ἐπὶ τοὺς

XXV. On the 3rd of Tishri was removed the 'mentioning' from documents.

According to the Scholiast this item belongs to the Hasmonean period. When the Hasmoneans conquered the Greeks they decreed that the Divine Name should be mentioned in public documents, that all documents should bear the formula 'in such and such a year of Johanan, high priest to the most high God', &c. Subsequently the sages annulled the decree on the ground that after the expiration of the deed the bill would be discarded and thus the name written thereon would be exposed to indignity.

Graetz\(^2\) thinks that this goes back to the time in Simon's administration when they abolished the Seleucid era and began to count the years from the date of the regained independence.

It is my belief, however, that this holiday can safely be assigned to the Revolutionary period. After the Judean victory over Agrippa's army on the 17th of Elul and after the incidents of Elul 22nd, when the Romans were compelled to flee and find refuge in the fortresses of the king, the Jews succeeded on the 3rd of Tishri in capturing and setting fire to the royal palaces and in exterminating the enemy. Thereby the Jews completely threw off the yoke of the Romans as well as their allegiance to King Agrippa. It then became natural to remove the names of Caesar and Agrippa from the public documents and coins. Until then it had been customary to write in all documents, 'in such and such a year of the imperium of such and such a Caesar

\(^2\) Graetz, III, 2, p. 572; Schwab, pp. 228-9; see also Geiger, Urschrift, p. 34, n. 1.
at Rome'. Now, however, when they had won a victory over the Romans and had burned Agrippa's palace, they ceased writing in documents the number of the year of the reigning emperor. It is quite likely that about the same time new coins were issued with the legend "Trw,n m,17i %r-nw nSlxN. The symbol thereon was, in consonance with the character of the approaching festival, the four species in the Lulab, while on reverse was the representation of a Sukkah.\textsuperscript{265}

That our identification is correct is seen from Josephus who dates the above event definitely on the 6th of Gorpiaeus (\textit{Bell. Iud.} II, 17, 8). \textit{ο}ι \textit{δὲ} \textit{περὶ} \textit{τὸν} Μανάημον \textit{εἰσπεσόντες δὲν \ο}ι \textit{στρατιώται} \textit{διέφυγον} \textit{διό}ς \textit{το} \textit{αὐτῶν} \textit{κατελάμβανον} \textit{μὴ} \textit{φθάσαντας} \textit{ἐκδραμεῖν} \textit{διέφθειραν, καὶ \τὰς} \textit{ἀποσκευὰς} \textit{διαρράπαντες} \textit{ἐνέπρησαν} \textit{τὸ} \textit{στρατόπεδον. ταῦτα} \textit{μὲν} \textit{οὖν} \textit{ἐκ} \textit{Γορπίαου} \textit{μνύσας} \textit{ἐπράξθη}. Thus, too, this paragraph of the Megillah harmonizes with what we have shown above independently, that the 14th of Loius to the 6th of Gorpiaeus is 23 days (17 + 6), while from 10th of Elul to the 3rd of Tishri is also 23 days (20 + 3). In this connexion it may further be pointed out that all these victories were the work of Menahem,\textsuperscript{267} son \textsuperscript{266} The beginning of the month Tishri in the year 65 C.E. was 22nd of September, see F. K. Ginzel, \textit{Handbuch der mathematischen und technischen Chronologie}, II, Tafel III–IV, Leipzig, 1911. See above, note 253.

\textsuperscript{267} It may have been due to the popularity of this man Menahem who threw off the yoke of Rome and the Herodian dynasty from the Jews that they gave the name Menahem to the Messiah, or it is even possible that they called him Messiah. The Talmud says the name of Messiah is Menahem, son of Hezekiah, מנהם בן חזקיה שמח, Sanhedrin 98 b, and in Midrash Rabba (to Lam. 1) also it is stated that his name is Menahem and the name of his father is Hezekiah. of the well-known scribe Judas the Galilean, the ἱστορὴς δευτῆτος whose party seceded from the Pharisees on one point, namely by refusing to recognize the rule of any person or king other than God. δυσνικητὸς δὲ τοῦ ἐλευθέρου ἔρως ἐστὶν αὐτοὶς μόνον ἡγεμόνα καὶ δεσπότην τὸν θεὸν υπειληφόσιν ... ἀνοίᾳ τε τῇ, ἐντεῦθεν ἥρατο νοσεῖν τὸ ἔθνος Γεσσίου Φλώρου, δὲ ἡγεμῶν ἦν, τῇ ἐξουσίᾳ τοῦ ὑβρίζειν ἀποστῆσαντος αὐτοῦς ἀποστῆναι Ἱωβαίων (Ant. XVIII, 1. 6).

Judas had in time of Quirinus taunted the Jews because of their recognition of the authority of the Romans, whereas according to his view the Jews were of right subject to God alone (Beil. Iud. II, 8, 1). So now on the 3rd of Tishri (65 C.E.) the opportunity came to his son Menahem to put into practice his father's theory, i.e. to throw off the yoke of Rome and, consistently with the programme, to abolish the mention of the year of the Emperor or of the Herodian ruler on the documents. This issue which divided Judas and his party from the Pharisees is alluded to in an obscure Mishnah (Yadaim, IV, 8) which now becomes clear.

Menahem in Josephus's record was the son of Judas and grandson of Hezekiah. See more about Menahem, S. Zeitlin, 'The last days of Jerusalem', Jewish Forum, April, 1918.

In copies of the Talmud the reading varies, לְיִלָלֶה and לוֹלֶלֶל וּרְוִיק. Here, certainly, either it was Judah himself or one of his party that disputed with the Pharisees. See also Geiger, Urschrift, pp. 35, 146; Derenbourg, Essai, p. 161.

All editions of the Talmud now extant have מְלֶשׁ עַם מֵמָשׁ בְּמַשׁ, but that there were copies with מְדֶלֶלֶל עַם מֵמָשׁ is borne out by the Tosafists (Baba batra 16a a), and this is the correct reading. If we read 'the ruler with Moses', then the answer of the Pharisees to their opponent becomes illogical, as he asked them why they write 'the ruler with Moses',
... Thus said [Judas] the Galilean, 'I protest against you, O Pharisees, because you inscribe in the documents the name of the ruler, together with the Divine Name, i.e. by dating the documents according to the reign of Caesar or the Herodian dynasty, you recognize the suzerainty of a power other than God.' The Pharisees replied, 'We protest against thee, O Judas, for ye, too, write the name of the ruler on the same page with the Divine Name, i.e. when in the scroll of the Law you write Pharaoh king of Egypt, by the side of the Divine Name.'

XXVI. The 7th day thereof (Kislev) is a holiday.

The Megillah in this instance does not indicate the reason for this holiday. The Scholiast explains that it commemorated the death of Herod (I). A critical examination shows this conjecture of the Scholiast to be untenable. For it can be proved clearly that the 7th of Kislev was not the date of King Herod's death.

From Antiq. XVII, 8. 9. 3. and Bell. Ind. II, 1. 1–3, it is plainly to be inferred that Herod died not long before Passover. It is stated there that Archelaus, after the seven days of mourning and seclusion, repaired to the Temple about the time when the people flocked to Jerusalem to celebrate Passover. The 7th of Kislev is seventeen weeks before the Nisan festival. Graetz in defence of the Scholiast transfers the expression 'thereon died Herod' to the cor-and they answer that in the Torah they have precedent for writing the the ruler with the Divine Name. The original reading must have been 'the ruler with the Name', and the word בתי led the compilers and others into an error, whereby they considered it equivalent to a writ of divorce, containing the formula דינה מישראל והישראלי (see Tosaphot, ibid.), and therefore they thought the reading in the Mishnah Yadaim IV, 8 must be המשלל על מיעז. But here בתי connotes any and every kind of document.

responding gloss for the second of Shebat\(^{270}\) which is also designated in the Megillah ב י י without other qualification, and he substitutes in our passage the gloss 'thereon died (Alexander) Jannai the king' which is found in the present scholia for the 2nd of Shebat. This substitution is not of much avail, for the 2nd of Shebat is fully ten weeks before Passover and therefore does not harmonize with the above cited passage of Josephus. Moreover from Antiq. XVII, 6. 4, we learn that not long before Herod's death there was an eclipse of the moon,\(^{271}\) and we know that in 4 B.C.E. the moon's eclipse was on March 12–13.\(^{272}\) In that year Passover fell on April 11th.\(^{273}\) This proves conclusively that Herod died in the end of Adar and not on the 7th of Kislev, or on the 2nd of Shebat.\(^{274}\)

\(^{274}\) Fixing the date of Herod's death is not only important in itself, but has additional interest for those who believe in the historicity of Jesus of Nazareth, whom Matt. (2. 1) states to have been born in Herod's reign. As we have said, Herod died a short time after the eclipse of the moon witnessed in Jerusalem 12–13th March, 750 A.U.C. (4 B.C.E) according to these scholars; consequently Jesus must have been born before Nisan 750 A.U.C., 4 C.E. This chronology reckoned from his birth is at least four years behind.

Some scholars perceive a difficulty arising from another statement of Josephus, Ant. XVII, 8, 1, Bell. Iud. I, 33, 8, that Herod ruled thirty-four years de facto after his capture of Jerusalem; but from 37 B.C. to 4 B.C. would make only thirty-three years. Schürer expresses the opinion that Josephus habitually adds one year, and that he deduces from Josephus's statement that the interval between Pompey's capture of Jerusalem and by Herod's was twenty-seven years, whereas it was only twenty-six years (from 63 B.C.E. to 37 B.C.E.). But I have shown that Josephus counted not mathematical years, but chronological years—i.e. he counted fractions of a year as a whole. Thus the number of the years of Herod's reign will be thirty-four years—he having become king shortly after the capture of
To properly identify this holiday, it is necessary to consider first why in this and in one other instance, the chronicler of the Megillah refrained from making any explanation regarding the cause of the holiday. Undoubtedly the chronicler's silence in these instances is due to their being recently instituted holidays pro tempore. The incidents being well known to all, it was not necessary to add any explanations. The contemporaries, at the time when the Megillah was first drawn up, found it unnecessary to receive any explanations of these incidents. It certainly was not the purpose to present a historical survey for coming generations of Eleazar ben Hanina ben Hezekiah ben Garon and his associates. Now these men were connected with the Judean revolt against Rome. Their activity falls in the few years preceding the destruction of the Temple. We should naturally look to that uprising to find the important event that signalized the 7th of Kislev, and thus indeed the event may be readily identified.

Josephus, in Bell. Iud. II, 19, describes the victory of the Jews over Cestius which took place on the 8th of Dius in the 12th year of Emperor Nero. This was the year 65 C.E. Now the 8th of Dius corresponds to Nov. 25th which in that year was co-incident with the 7th of Kislev.

278 Ginzel, Handbuch, Tafel III; see also note 253. From the sixth of Gorpiaeus—Sept. 24—to the eighth of Dius—Nov. 25—there are sixty-three days; while from the third of Ἔριστα to the seventh of Ἰον there are now sixty-four days. This discrepancy is explained by the circumstance
Thus, the apparently enigmatical reference of the chronicler to the holiday of the 7th of Kislev, is tantamount to saying, 'The victory over Cestius is quite fresh in your minds.'

The above explanation of the seventh of Kislev is the final link in the chain of evidence which we adduced from the Megillah to support the general thesis of Niese that virtually all of the dates regarding the events of the Great Revolt which occur in Bell. Iud. belong to the Tyrian calendar. This particular date which is the 8th of Dius, however, has been utilized by others to prove that the non-Hebrew names of the months in Bel. Iud. are only the Roman equivalents for the actual Hebrew calendar, and that the Jewish victory over Cestius on the 8th of Dius corresponded in fact to the 8th of Marheshvan. For in describing Cestius's arrival at Lydda, Josephus states that the city was denuded of men owing to their having gone to Jerusalem to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles. Now the defeat of Cestius took place nine days after his arrival in Jerusalem. If the date of this event be accepted as the 7th of Kislev, then it is impossible to account for the long interval between the known period of Cestius's arrival in Lydda and the inferred date of his coming to Jerusalem.\(^{279}\)

It is therefore argued that the Syro-Macedonian names of the months which occur in Bel. Iud. are really the equivalents of the corresponding months in the Jewish calendar, that the name Dius is employed to designate the Hebrew month Heshvan, and that the 8th of Dius is therefore the 8th of Heshvan.

that in those days both הָלֵין and הָשָׁוֶן were defective months (נַפִּיל was, then, always defective, comp. Jer. Sanh. r8 d).

\(^{279}\) Westberg, Zur neutestamentlichen Chronologie.
The chief argument on which this theory is based does not hold water. For Cestius’s arrival in Lydda need not at all be fixed as prior to or during the Feast of Tabernacles. On the contrary, he may well have come to Lydda in the beginning of the last quarter of Heshvan and yet found the place empty of men. For the people who went to Jerusalem to celebrate Succoth, seeing that the war had begun, might and naturally would prefer to remain in Jerusalem in order to engage in defensive and offensive operations against the Romans. Oi δὲ Ἰουδαῖοι κατιδύντες ἥδη πλησιάζοντα τῇ μπροσόλει τὸν πόλεμον, ἀφέμενοι τῇν ἐορτὴν ἐχώρουν ἐπὶ τὰ ὄπλα, καὶ μέγα τῷ πλῆθει ταρροῦντες ἀτακτοὶ καὶ μετὰ κραυγῆς ἐξεπῆδων ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην μηδὲ τῆς ἀργῆς ἐβδομάδος ἐννοιαν λαβόντες (Bell. Jud. II, 19. 2).280

Of the Jewish victories over Florus and Cestius we have a reminiscence in Aboth di R. Nathan, chap. IV. When Vespasian came to destroy Jerusalem, the Hagadah tells us, he said to the Jews, ‘Ye are fools, why will ye bring about the destruction of this city and this sanctuary—what do I ask of you but a bow and arrow (evidently a sign of subjection and obedience); send it to me, and I shall go away from you.’ The Jews replied to him, ‘As we vanquished the two generals who preceded thee and killed them, so will we go out against thee and kill thee.’ The two former generals were undoubtedly Florus and Cestius.281

XXVII. On the 28th of the month Tebet the Sanhedrin sat in judgement.

The word Kenishta, used in the Aramaic, applies to the Keneset-ha-gedolah, which came into being in the days of Ezra, or to the Sanhedrin (Beth-din ha-gadol) which met in the Chamber of Hewn Stones. This holiday serves to perpetuate an event that took place not long after that victory over Cestius on the 7th of Kislev. According to Josephus, leading men assembled in the Sanctuary to choose generals to conduct the war against the Romans, and we cannot doubt that at the same time they proceeded to set up a republican government in place of the régime that had ceased since the 3rd of Tishri (see above, No. XXV).

There were at that time two men chosen (Joseph, son of Gorion, and Anan the high priest) as heads of the administration at Jerusalem. This official action is evidence that the Sanhedrin which, according to the Talmud, had been compelled to abandon the Chamber of Hewn Stones (Lishkat ha-Gazit) forty years before the destruction of the Temple, and to meet in a ḥam,282 was now able to take up its old abode after the victory over Cestius. And it is there whence Jewish law should proceed283 that we find them

283 Now we can understand a certain Mishnah in Sanhedrin (chap. V, Mishnah 1) which states. The Talmud goes to some length in explaining this Mishnah, to the effect that the great teacher was very careful in a case involving capital punishment, to examine the witnesses in all minuteness; when the fig-tree under which they testified the man had been killed was mentioned he asked whether the in session again making provisions in all matters pertaining to the law and the people. There being no other authority or governing body besides them, the Sanhedrin had full power, and all things were done by their command.\textsuperscript{284}

There seems to be another reference in the Megillah to the same event:

'On the 24th day thereof (Ab) we again rendered judgements.' It is more than probable that through a copyist's error two dates are assigned for the celebration of this noteworthy event. This is suggested by a comparison of the Scholion to this passage with its parallel in the Talmud (Bab. bat. 115 b). In both sources, the holiday of the 24th of Ab is explained as commemorating a Pharisaic victory in the laws of inheritance. The manuscript readings of the Talmud, however, show a striking variant. MS. Munich reads the 28th of Ab in place of the 24th. The reading of the famous commentator R. Samuel b. Meir (RaShBaM) furthermore reads the 24th day thereof (י''ה), and supplies the month of Tebet. Evidently, then, according to him, the event which in our text of the Megillah is connected with the 24th of Ab is to be ascribed stems were fine or thick, white or black. The Amoraim were somewhat perplexed by this; they could not help wondering how Rabban Johanan ben Zaccai could have presided in a session of the Sanhedrin when forty years before the destruction of the Temple the Sanhedrin is said to have been banished and deprived of its jurisdiction (see \textit{ibid.} 41 a). But now as we realize that several years before the destruction of the Temple (i.e. in the beginning of 66 C.E.) the Sanhedrin again returned to the Hewn Stone Chamber and assumed jurisdiction, it is intelligible that Johanan ben Zaccai took part in the proceedings of the Sanhedrin. Indeed, after Vespasian captured Galilee, when the Zealots had wrested all power from the Sanhedrin, they had to gather a tribunal of seventy to judge and sentence a certain Zachariah ben Baruch to death (\textit{Bell. Iud.}, IV, 5. 4).

to the 24th of Tebet. As the same event could not be celebrated on two days which are so far apart, it must be assumed that an error crept into the text of the Talmud which influenced the copyist to corrupt the talmudic passage and hence the Megillah. If our interpretation is correct then the original text of the Megillah did not contain any reference to the 24th of Ab. R. Samuel b. Meir evidently had the original text before him. Thus, too, we explain the fact that the Jerusalem Talmud which records the Pharisaic victory and the entire discussion connected therewith, does not assign any particular day to the event and makes no mention of any ensuing holiday.'

XXVIII. The 2nd of Shebat is Yom Tob.

As was suggested above (p. 274) the bareness of the 285 With reference to the word ה ל, Dr. Malter suggests the following: If the Rashbam had in his version of the Megillah, the reading 'on the 24th thereof' in connexion with the month of Ab, it is difficult to see what has forced him to interpret ה ל in the Talmud as referring to Tebet. This is the more surprising as the word ה ל can only be used when the month to which it is to refer had been mentioned before explicitly by name, e.g. in connexion with the 24th of Ab (where the name Ab is given in the immediately preceding 'on the 15th of Ab') but not in connexion with the event on the 24th or, as the case may be, 28th of Tebet, which is not preceded by any other incident credited to that month. We must therefore assume that in the Megillah of R. S. the incident was recorded only under the 28th of Tebet (not under Ab) and reading in the Talmud, like the Munich MS., he felt it necessary to explain that the word ה ל, right or wrong, must refer to Tebet as there was no other month in the Megillah to which the incident could be referred. It is true that R. S. quotes ה ל, but this reading may be due to copyists or editors, who wished to harmonize his text with that of the Talmud. Of course, all this does not remove the difficulty why the Talmud quotes ה ל instead of ה ל. We must either say that it is an inaccuracy, or that in the Megillah of the Talmudists there was still another incident recorded under Tebet prior to the 28th thereof. See A. Schwarz, 'La Victoire des Pharisiens,' RÉJ., v. 63, pp. 51-6.

statement is an indication that the cause of the holiday was so well known as to require no specification, and that it marked an event that was contemporary with the time when the Megillah was compiled, namely, the period of the great Revolt. It may be assumed that the event which was celebrated on the 2nd of Shebat took place within a few days after the public assembly (28th Tebet) above mentioned, which met to regulate matters and to dispel the chaos prevailing since the 3rd of Tishri (see above, No. XXV). No striking events are known to have occurred then. It may be conjectured, therefore, that the day marked possibly the inauguration of the new officers. It is also possible that the day commemorated the reaching a decision as to what books were Canonical (ספרים קדשים) and what were extra-Canonical (ספרים וחוטים).\textsuperscript{286} Josephus's ignoring such incidents is quite in line with his tendency to disparage the leaders of the insurrection who figured therein. Here the Megillah supplies what he omits.

XXIX. On the 12th of Adar is the Day of Tyrion.

The Scholiast accounts for this holiday by the following narrative:

\begin{quote}
"וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה לְצֹרְזוּס כָּל לְיָהּ וַהֲוָה סְפָּדָיו אַלּוֹ דְּרָכָיו;—וְיִשְׁרָאֵל בֶּן מַוֶּא הָיָה L

It is even possible that the decrees of the house of Shammai and the house of Hillel, known to us as the decrees of the house of Shammai and the house of Hillel, also belong to this season and to this tribunal. See S. Zeitlin, 'Les Dix-Huit Mesures', RÊF, 1914, pp. 22–36.
The Day of Tryanos; he captured Lulianus and his brother Pappus in Laodicea. Said he to them: 'If ye be of the people of Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, your God will come and save you from my hands as he saved Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah from the hands of Nebuchadnezzar.' They replied: 'Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah were righteous and pious men and Nebuchadnezzar a noble monarch who was worthy that a miracle should be wrought through him, whilst thou art a wicked king and not fit that a miracle be performed through thee. We deserve death, and if thou wilt not slay us, God hath many other agencies through which to kill us, many bears... but if thou killest us the Lord will demand our blood of thy hand.' The story is told that he had hardly moved from the spot when a rescript came from Rome and they killed him.

This story occurs also in the Talmud Babli, and Pesikta Zutarta to P. Emor (p. 62). In these parallels, however, the death of Lulianus and Pappus is recorded as having actually taken place prior to the arrival of the Roman rescript. It is generally assumed that the Scholiast refers to Trajan who died in the year 117 C.E. and that this represents the proper historical interpretation of this holiday.

The version of the Scholiast cannot be applied to Trajan for the latter, as is well known, died a natural death. Nor can the 12th of Adar in any event signalize the death of Trajan, for the event took place in the month

The suggestion which has been made that it was the death of Trajan's general Quictus, which was celebrated on the 12th of Adar,\textsuperscript{291} and that the name of Quietus was confused with that of his Emperor, is unacceptable. For while this confusion in names is possibly conceivable in the Scholium or in the Talmud where the motive was to explain a text which was no longer intelligible to them, there is no justification for assuming such a confusion in the text proper. The Scholiast puts in the mouths of Lulianus and Pappus the expression מַלֶלֶךְ יִשֵּׁש 'Thou art a wicked king'. Quietus, of course, was not a king. Quietus was too well-known a name to be lightly confused with Trajan. Finally, it is known that Quietus was killed late in the summer or early in the autumn of 118 C. E.\textsuperscript{292}

P. Cassel\textsuperscript{293} thinks that should be read וָיִשֵּׁש לֵי, and would see therein a reminder of Judas Maccabees' victory over Seron the Syrian commander. commemorating the defeat of Seron. We must therefore seek for something more plausible.

This memorial day appears to have originated in the war against Rome. ירה in Aramaic means military recruit, as in Syriac לֶּבֶס, in Greek τίρων. When the government was organized and they prepared for war against the Romans, many of the Jewish youth quite naturally volunteered for military service,—the drilling of these young men Josephus mentions in these words: πρὸς ἀτάκτοις δὲ γυμνασίαις τὸ τῶν νέων πλήθος ἦν (Bell. Iud. II, 22. 1). This holiday of ייו was instituted, then, either in honour of the soldiers, somewhat as they had annual military festivities among the Romans, or, perhaps, in honour of those warriors who followed Josephus to Galilee; in the latter case it would furnish a near date for Josephus’s setting out for northern Palestine.

297 What I have said about this holiday originating in the great war against Rome is only a suggestion. It is indeed possible that the reading in the Babylonian Talmud is more correct, מַרְיוֹרִים מַרְיוֹרֵי, meaning ‘king’, is a transliteration of τυπάνιος = τυπανία. In that case the holiday dates from the Roman period, from the reign of Herod the Great, the day on which he became de facto sovereign, and in an anniversary of which the Temple was dedicated by him. Josephus (Antiq. XV, i. 6) states that the Temple was consecrated on the anniversary of the day on which Herod received the kingdom, and so the holiday became great:

XXX. On the 17th of Adar, the Gentiles arose against the refugees of Sepphoris in the province of Chalcis and in Beth Zabdai, but there came salvation (to the Jews).

All the critics who have commented on this Megillah have accepted the view of the Scholiast which is contained in the following: 299

When Alexander Jannaeus descended to kill the Sages, they fled from him, turned to Syria and dwelt in the province of Chalcis. Their enemies in that part of the country attacked them murderously, caused much depredation among them and smote them grievously, and there was left of them a remnant. These went to Beth Zabdai and tarried there until dark, and then they fled. 300 R. Judah says: ‘They had a horse tied at the front of their house and whosoever saw it inferred that there was no Jew within. (Obviously reference is had here to the sabbath when a Jew would have no occasion for a horse.) Thus they remained there until dark and then fled thence. That day on which they made their escape was declared a holiday.’

It has been suggested 300 that this incident is alluded to captured Jerusalem in the month of January (10th of Tebeth), which makes it quite possible that he assumed the functions of royalty on the 12th of Adar, and made that day a holiday. Some years later, to insure its being kept, he held the dedication exercises of the Temple on that day. The name דָּרוֹן was given to this holiday, as the Jews were not fond of the name Herod. In Ṣedah la-Derek, by Menahem ben Zerah, this day of memorial is not found.

by Josephus (Ant., XIII, 14. 2) when he narrates that eight thousand men of war fled from Judea in one night, by reason of their fear of Alexander Jannaeus, and remained in exile until he died. This view is not acceptable, for the Megillah itself specifies that the persecution was inaugurated by גentario (Gentiles) and no mention is made of a Jewish king. It is clear that the Scholiast was misled by the word מדרים which currently means the Scribes (i.e. Sages) and hence the writer associated the persecution of the מדרים with the persecution of the Sages by Alexander Jannaeus.

I venture to suggest that מדרים in this instance is the name of the well-known city Sepphoris and מדרים מדרים indicates the refugees of Sepphoris. The name occurs in the Talmud as מדרים, in Syriac מדרים, and in Aramaic מדרים.

בכורות מדרים in the Jerushalmi (Kiddushin 67 d) is taken by many geographers to be the city of Sepphoris. As for its being situated in the province of Chalcis, this is what the Romans knew as Chalcis ad Libanum, and from 44 C.E. Jewish princes reigned there. Claudius gave it as a present to Herod, brother of Agrippa I, whence he derived the name Herod of Chalcis. He was succeeded by Agrippa II. Bet Zabdanai was situated in the Lebanon.

304 Sepphoris, it is true, was in the province of Galilee, but owing to the fact that Agrippa the Second, who was king of a part of Galilee, which he received from Nero (Antiq. XX, 8. 4), was at the same time king of Chalcis, which he had from Claudius after the death of Herod, king of Chalcis (Bell. Iud., II, 12. 1), the Megillah speaks of Sepphoris as a city in the kingdom of Chalcis.

We are now in a position to identify this holiday. It clearly belongs to the period of the Great Revolt. In consequence of the Jewish victory over Cestius, the Gentiles throughout Syria, to prove their devotion to Rome, rose against the Jews (Bell. Iud., II, XX, 2; Vita, 6). In all the cities of Galilee the Jews suffered greatly and especially in Sepphoris where most of the citizens belonged to the peace party, and where those who believed in war against Rome were killed or reduced to slavery. A change took place when Josephus came to Galilee; the Jews of Syria and Sepphoris escaped to the cities which Josephus controlled. Quite in harmony with this interpretation is the expression ἵππος ἀκατάστασις which intimates safety rather than victory. This is quite in line with what Josephus himself says:

"Ωρμησέ γε μήν Ἴωσηπος ἐπὶ τὴν πόλιν (Sepphoris) αἰρήσεως ἐλπίσασθαι ἵνα αὐτὸς πρὶν ἀποστῇμαι Γαλιλαῖοι ἔτειχίσαν ὡς καὶ Ῥωμαῖοι δυσάλωτον εἶναι. διὸ καὶ τῆς ἐλπίδος ἀφήμαρτον τὸν τε βιάζοντα καὶ τοῦ μεταπέθειαν Ἴσοφορίτας ἀσθενέστερον εὐφεβεῖς. παράξυνεν δὲ μᾶλλον τὸν πόλεμον ἐπὶ τὴν χώραν, καὶ ὡς ἐκτὸς ὑπὲρ ὅποθ' ἡμέραν ὄργῃ τῆς ἐπιβουλῆς οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι διέλιπον δηούντες αὐτῶν τὰ πεδία καὶ διαρπάζοντες τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς χώρας κτήματα. καὶ κτείνοντες μὲν ἀεὶ τὸ μάχιμον, ἀνδραποδίζομενοι δὲ τῶν ἀσθενεῖς. πυρὶ δὲ ἡ Γαλιλαία καὶ ἅμα τε πεπλήρωτο πᾶσα, πάθους τε ὑπὲρ οὐδενὸς καὶ συμφορᾶς ἀπείρατος ἵνα μία γὰρ καταφυγῇ διωκομένοις αἱ ὑπὸ τοῦ Ἴωσηποῦ τειχισθεῖσαι πόλεις ἥσαν (Bell. Ind. III, 4. 1).

The date of the 17th of Adar furthermore agrees with the period of Josephus's arrival in Galilee, which took place in the spring of 66 C.E. This was the last memorial day associated with the Judean war against the Romans. For this Josephus was the man to whom the eyes of all Israel turned with the hope that he would prove a great source of strength to the Jews in his conduct of the war in Galilee, but Galilee was lost to the Jews, and as a result the Sanhedrin lost prestige and power, and the Zealots, split into parties, were the source of destructive anarchy, and the outcome, a few years later, was loss of national independence.
XXXI. On the 15th of Ab is the season of the wood of the priests (i.e. that the priests brought).

In the Mishnah (Taanit 26 a) we learn of nine periods during the year when the people and the priests brought wood for the altar of the Temples. In the Jerushalim (Megillah 70 c) 'any and every man who takes upon himself to bring wood for the altar is forbidden to mourn, to fast or to do any work on that day, which is to him a Yom Tob.' According to this version, therefore, the bringing of wood for the altar is made a general rule, and applies to any of these nine appointed times. It is therefore necessary to understand why the Megillah lays particular stress on the 15th of Ab—making it a general holiday. This is possibly to be explained by the supposition that the other dates were assigned to well-defined classes or shifts, who were to furnish fuel on dates especially assigned to them, but the 15th of Ab was the time when all those who had not joined the group to which they belonged, or who had neglected to bring their wood-offering to the altar, would atone for their remissness. In time it came to be recognized by all Jews as a great holiday, so that the Mishnah states in the name of Rabbi Simon ben Gamaliel that 'Israel enjoyed no holiday greater than the 15th of Ab and the Day of Atonement. The answers given in the Talmud as to why the fifteenth of Ab became so distinguished a Yom Tob are of late origin, and possess no historical value.

XXXII, XXXIII, XXXIV. The 8th and the 9th of Adar were days of solemn prayer for rain.

The Scholiast explains that these two days commemorate two distinct events of like character which occurred in different years. For to say that these two days commemorate one and the same event would be equivalent to stating that after praying and sounding the Shofar on the eighth day they confirmed or renewed these exercises on the following day. This would be making a fast of two days, which is not allowed. In the Scholiast's words, the expression in the Megillah, proves, too, that these two days belonged originally to different years.

The Megillah makes mention of another memorable day whereon they prayed for rain—the 20th of Adar. This is explained by the Scholiast as follows: there had been a famine and drought in Palestine for three years. As no rain appeared even in the third year the people begged Honi ha-m'aggel to intercede, and furthermore his prayer was answered by the downpour of rain. Cp. Taanit 23a, Similarly, Josephus (Antiq. XIV, 2. 1), states that once there was a famine in Judea, and Onias prayed to God and rain came.

XXXV. On the 14th and 15th are the days of Purim.

In regard to these holidays there is extant the scroll of Esther. There (9. 17–19) we are told that the Jews of Susa kept the 15th day of Adar as a holiday, whereas the Jews in unfortified cities kept the 14th. In 2 Maccabees there is undoubted reference to the feast of Purim in the statement that the day of Nicanor is on the 13th of Adar, 'one day before the day of Mordecai' \(\text{(πρὸ μιᾶς ἡμέρας τῆς Μαρδοκαίης ἡμέρας)}.\)

\[312\] In Maccabees, when it speaks of the holiday, 13th of Adar, commemorating the victory of Nicanor, makes no allusion to Purim. This fact caused many hypotheses. Some think that 1 Maccabees was written in Palestine, and that in Palestine the festival was not thus observed, being introduced later from the Diaspora.

However, as I demonstrated above, Nicanor was killed in the 1st Adar in the year 152 A.C. (161 B.C.E.)—this year being leap year, and this explains why the day of Purim is not mentioned, as it was celebrated in Adar 2. In 2 Maccabees, where the material is drawn from the books of Jason of Cyrene, written in the Diaspora, the statement 'before the day of Mordecai' may be due to unconsciousness of the fact that Nicanor was killed in the 1st Adar. Confusion could have arisen from the fact that in short years these festivals fall on consecutive days.
